

BIBLIOGRAFIA

- [1] Alberti, M. et al. “Automatic Branching Detection in IVUS Sequences“. IBPRIA 2011, Gran Canaria, España.
- [2] Sakoe, H. and Chiba, S. (1978). “Dynamic programming algorithm optimization for spoken word recognition”, IEEE Transactions on Acoustics, Speech and Signal Processing.
- [3] Robinson Joshua. (2004). “Pseudo-Local Aligment of Continuos Time Series”.
- [4] Keogh, E.J. and Pazzani, M.J. (2001). “Derivative Dynamic Time Warping”. First SIAM International Conference on Data Mining, Chicago, IL.
- [5] Wöllmer, M., Al-Hames, M., et al. (2009). "A multidimensional dynamic time warping algorithm for efficient multimodal fusion of asynchronous data streams". Neurocomputing 73:366–380.
- [6] Latecki, L.J., Megalooikonomou, V., Wang, Q., Lakaemper, R., Ratanamahatana, C. A., and Keogh, E. (2005). “Elastic partial matching of time series. In: Proc. Principles and Practice of Knowledge Discovery in Databases (PKDD)”, Porto, Portugal.
- [7] Uchida, S. and Sakoe, H. (2005). "A Survey of Elastic Matching Techniques for Handwritten Character Recognition". IEICE Transactions on Information and Systems E88-D(8).
- [8] Dynamic Time Warping, Wikipedia (2011). Disponible en:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Dynamic_time_warping

[9] Dynamic Time Warp (DTW) in Matlab. (2011). Disponible en:

<http://labrosa.ee.columbia.edu/matlab/dtw/>

[10] Cohen, L.D. and Kimmel, R. (1997). “Global minimum for active contour models: A minimal path approach”. International Journal of Computer Vision, 24(1):57–78.